<http://wii.nintendo.com/home.html> <-- Just check out the "fresh experiances" video. This is the way forward in my opinion. I cant see the ps3 offereing any kind of interactivity that matches this. even with the rip off wii that they have put in, i dont see how it will be as practicle.

Actually let me rephrase my statement. What I wanted to say is "Gaming is 90% about the games, and much less about what you play the game them on". By this I mean that no matter what console the game is on, as long as it is good.
