
Subject: Re: Fantasy Wallpaper #2

Posted by Aircraftkiller on Fri, 19 May 2006 16:22:28 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

PackHunter wrote on Fri, 19 May 2006 03:22 Aircraftkiller wrote on Thu, 18 May 2006 18:40 CONGRATULATIONS YOU'VE MADE NO SENSE AT ALL

WE BOW TO YOUR INTERNET SKILLS LOLZ.

Rofl, is your caps lock stuck again?

NIT-PICKING:

Instead of dealing with a comment or question directly, the idea here is to focus on some insignificant detail to evade the issue or buy time to think.

"We need to define just exactly what you mean by _____."

"Your last sentence ended with a preposition. Please restate it properly."

"Your caps lock is stuck, your post is meaningless now."

Quote:Haha...good comeback! Too bad the comparison doesn't change my argument in the slightest; you're just bitter about being proven wrong. Find your own comparison then, if you really have never heard of grammar nazis or soup nazis...even people like you that don't go outside usually come across at least one of the two once in their life.

NAME IT:

To the feeble minded, if there is a NAME used as a label for IT, then it must be wrong, even if it isn't. The NAME, now a "proof" of sorts, can be used as a sledgehammer if IT comes up again.

"The case you just made was first made by Edgar Sullivan in the late 1800s and was quickly disproved. The 'Sullivan Error' inevitably occurs to people when they first start studying the subject."

"Your line of reasoning is called the MacGregor Phenomenon."

"Why, that's Calvinism!"
