If he leaves the mod won't die immediately. Heck it definately will slow down. But there are mods being made without you. And they are doing pretty well. Anyways it is now really a matter of putting more features in. They can hire people to do the things you said. And sure they might not do a better job, but they do the job. And that is all that matters. So go ahead and leave. But don't come back even if it is to try pound them into the ground. Because knowing you it seems like something you would try to do.
