Sure, but you can't host 50 players with a home c0n can you?
Besides real good server host company's are usally straight into the country's host with 100MBIT... so ping latencys are alot better, but if you host a small server why not. Though don't forget that on LAN you won't notice any lag.. so join your game at a friends house or something to see if its good.
