I agree with most you've said, but what evidence is there for your form of god? There's no evidence for either.

Thomas Aquinas just assumes that there is a first cause to everything and that it is god...but why should it be that way? I mean, if god can exist without a reason, then why can't the universe?

And maybe there isn't a first cause at all...how could we possibly know?

Suck my nuts, Tom!
