Thank you for the offer amanra, but this still is a bigger problem than an irc script I think. We have a new server, a fresh reinstall and still the same outcome. A client that joins cannot exceed vehicle limit unless someone in the FDS manually types vlimit and sets a vehicle number. As I've stated before, it seems to me a timer of some sorts needs to contact the fds periodically with a set vehicle limit command. Perhaps a better solution is possible, but the scripts in the server and client seem to be like an old married couple - they don't talk to each other often enough.
