Yes, I've been attacked by a dude who controls thousands of computers infected with a trojan virus. This is why I tell you people NOT to download these fly-by-night aimbots and relays, MOST of them are infected, and MOST of them run right by your virus scanner because they don't have any properties to trigger them, scary as that sounds.

My new web host (<http://www.deru.net>) run VERY fast servers, which we've only been able to enjoy for a few hours... he's putting my site on its own box and segmenting the network so that attacks only affect the one site and not the rest.

We should be up in a couple days.

And if any of you have parents or close friends in the FBI or anything, PM me.
