Own 'em, train with 'em, and am a pretty damn good shot if I do say so myself. I'm an American gun owner, and proud of it.

Now, what I took from this article is that this guy intentionally avoided harming people, and did all his damage to buildings owned by either the factory or the government officials they were in bed with. Not that I'm saying I agree with what he did, but you must admit- they did ask for it. Everybody's got a breaking point; they just pushed his a little farther than they should have.
