1: Don't blatantly rip off a popular... er, anything. At least be a little inventive.

2: Make sure people know what you're talking about. Who is Kamuix, what server are you talking about, and why should we care?

3: Try and write like you actually have some command of the English language. Assuming you want people to actually understand you, instead of just assuming you're an illiterate moron...

4: Don't tell us the obvious (who doesn't know about Google?) and don't NOT tell us what to do with it. (what, pray tell, does Google have to do with this?) I went to Google. And I saw... a search bar. Whee. And now what? Waffles? Where I can buy some more socks? Travel information?

Those are some good tips being that you suck at the internet.
