Evolution among other faiths removes any primary source in such a ways as to dictate that existence originates from... existence?

I've encorporated evolution into my theologic views. I believe completely in evolution. In fact, I believe in the Big Bang Theory. I believe that the Creationist theory is correct... just told in a different way. I mean, they didn't exactly have advanced sciences during those ancient times, so explaining it the way we are taught now would have went over their heads. Instead, the way Genesis explains it is a more colorful and easy way of understanding it.

That is purely my opinion. Nobody told me this, and I'm certainly not going to preach this as truth.
