There is a peace of mind that you can enjoy with that route. I'm sure you get a one year warranty or better. When the error report in MMC says to contact the vendor, you wont break out in a nervous sweat. The motherboard chip-set, interface bandwidth and a neutered BIOS are a concern but, I thought about making a similar purchase. Then swapping the mobo with money I saved on the other pieces. Me to picky for that.

Funny how hardware price's fall so far so fast, yet a new PC still cost $1200 or more.
