I bought a Dell 4700 about a year ago. Everyone told me Dell sucked, but I went through with it. It cost me $900, and handles every game I put on it. It's also the best out of 5 computers in our house (some of which costed more at the time purchase). It runs the same as it did when I bought it. The only issue is that it's not vented very well, and may overheat if it's in a restricted space (though I guess that's unniversal for PC's). They're not very appropriate for post-purchase hardware customizing, though.
