haha @ guy who said thing about overpASS

haha <3 de7

and spoony you know i wont do that so why even say it. i barely ever play on public servers, but i know id play more if the rules werent so stupid. why is keeping swearing to the minimum such a high priority and stopping team hampering and all that shit not?

it makes no sense. i fully understand that there are people who pay for these servers and are entitled to their own rules, but why should that mean that we should just simply follow their stupidity? im sure no one would have a problem in changing their servers in order to make the community happier & just basically.. better. people dont host their own servers just for themselves. they also do it because they feel it would make the community happier (or well thats how i would feel).

we dont have to ask them to change everything in an offensive way like syaing "K UR GAY, UR RULES R GAY CHANGED THEM CUZ UR GAY" -- there can easily be a mature way of changing everything.

and if u think that the way things now r fine then well, i think u should read de7's post cuz he's made a very valid point.
