Maybe you don't know them because you spend most of your time playing CW's?

I got nothing against CW's. I respect people playing them. I do not respect people with an attitude problem. Unfortunately quite a lot of clans playing a lot of CW's have an attitude problem. Ofcourse I'm not obliged to play against them.

As my deputy game leader put it: "No one of us likes the stress and atmosphere of an official league. We are all old men (and a few young ladys), so too much tizzy is not good for us "

We play our share of funwars and are happy with that. Oh, we even believe we aren't all that bad at them, though not superb ofcourse. We play it for fun, because it gives an intresting dimension to the game. We also play funwars against CW.cc-clans, we play against about any clan that shows us a mature and respectful approach and obviously asks us to play a funwar. So feel free to give us a visit: www.thekoss2.org. We'll just have to find a date: we try to limit to 2 funwars per week as we also have recruit trainings and other events and we have had quite some requests lately .
