

---

Subject: Re: Hey, I thought there were NINE planets in our Solar System?

Posted by cheesesoda on Thu, 17 Aug 2006 13:01:52 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

If we classify planets by their size, our moon then would have to become a planet due to Pluto being so small, not to mention the amount of planets we'd have from Jupiter's moons.

If we classify them by whether or not they rotate a star (Sun), then many many many more asteroids become planets.

Either way, I don't care.

It'd be easier to classify them by size, imo.

---