People have been hitting over 3.5GHz on some E6400s, you'll just need really good air cooling and decent airflow. Looks like your case already will have the latter though. Now just get a massive copper heatsink

07:50<http://www.xtremesystems.org/forums/showthread.php?t=58642i> don't think a dual core processor will improve on gaming performance. instead try to get the processor to run as fast as possible.

That's old, someone else hit over 6.5GHz on a 3500+
