Subject: Re: Windows/Microsoft has pulled the last straw!!!
Posted by light on Fri, 08 Sep 2006 21:34:26 GMT

help-linux wrote on Sat, 09 September 2006 06:35first off windows is very unstable and crashes often, poeple can say this never happens but that is because they don't push like i do.
I'd say i've pushed both XP and 2000 pretty hard and they have coped very well. Anything before them though is flakey.

help-linux wrote on Sat, 09 September 2006 06:35to stop it crashing at the moment i have overclocked the proccessor to the max and it over heats regulary. i have enough spyware to give tell the whole us when i go to the toilet.
I'm sure there's a more sensible fix than OCing, and as for spyware you need tools to protect your PC, it comes with the territory.

help-linux wrote on Sat, 09 September 2006 06:35
does anybody have problems with windows?
EG: you have renegade running in the background with rengaurd, renegade server is up and then level edit wont run or windows doesn't even seem to try and load it or it brings up a white window?
Nope, never had anything like that.

Some people just don't like Windows, just like I'm not a big *nix fan, but I use netBSD at Uni and this PC has been dual booted with Mandrake and SuSE and Ubuntu. I still go back to Windows because it's what im confortable with.