
Subject: the draft

Posted by bigwig992 on Fri, 23 May 2003 02:51:11 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Technically there is still a draft. There isn't a point for it though because:

1. We have enough volunteers.
2. Our troops are the best trained in the world (yes, they are, argue if you want, but you can't argue with results).
3. No need for all the extra troops.

Now, the founding father's created the draft, it was, and still (technicly) is in effect. It is the DUTY of a citizen of the United States to serve in the military in time of war. Not saying it's a good thing for all the people who are against it, but come on. If you don't like the draft, simply move to Canada.

And Duke, your really starting to piss me off. Every time you insult America, it's "interest", it's people, and it's military, it reminds me of September 11th. Now if you think we are "over-doing" things, go call up some terrorist, and ask them to fly a jumbo-jet into your tallest fucking building. Don't we still have the right to be mad? I can predict what your going to say:

"no, your just bossing around the world, bush wants to take over the world and use all of iraq's oil"
:rolleyes:

Back to the subject, the draft will probley not happen again, not when you have people like my brother () out there because he choose to join and fight for everyone's freedoms.
