Does anyone not have the 1995 hackers syndrome?

What is wrong with using different themes to suit your likes? If you're not limited to one thing, why limit yourself?

Its all a matter of perspective I guess. Going to ITT, you will be subjected to the posiest of posers. People walking around wearing t-shirts with their computer specs on it. People asking me "Hey, do you know any cool programs i can download? I want my computer to be leet."

Ive even over hear the worst sentence I have ever heard in my life. "Hey if we make our computers look cool enough, people might think we are hackers."

All of these people, 4-5 hours a day tops. Im on a computer more hours that Ive slept in my lifetime. (Hmm, program idea) They don't even know what a nerds wristband is.

Bah, disgusting.

I hate to sound contradictory to what im saying about these people, but after enough hours and enough years the computer is a computer to you anymore.

When I see the "leet" desktops that line comes back to me.

Well, Linux is naturally leet, and I like to have really cool backgrounds for my viewing pleasure. Also, certain themes just get really old and tiring, and sometimes it's time for a new look.
