I bought a PNY Verto NVIDIA GeForce FX card, but it keep overheating. So I returned it and got an ATI RADEON 9200 instead. The driver installation was so much easier with ATI than with NVIDIA. The ATI card automatically disabled my onboard video adapter. With the NVIDIA card, I had to disable it manually. I also did not have to reboot my computer with the ATI card. I did have to reboot twice with the NVIDIA. I haven't have any problems with my ATI card.
