Yea i voted no as well, i could care less about blogs and that jazz for i don't read them anyways. Aside from that he is a vital part to the community as a whole and just banning him for his attitude shouldn't be done. He has been around since the birth of renegade and basically this forum even. He has supplied alot of help, regardless of his way of speaking his mind always.

I think he has every right to stay, i am another that comes here for that edge, we have alot of different personalities here, and thats what makes it enjoyable. Either way i am not at any level to make the decision, so i guess i will sit back down :
