
Subject: Re: A sniff of democracy (aka ACK vote)
Posted by warranto on Fri, 06 Oct 2006 15:45:26 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

KIRBY-098 wrote on Fri, 06 October 2006 09:34 If it transgresses your ethical standard then in that case, resigning in protest is an honorable and respectable thing to do.

Never mitigate your own personal standards. Do what is right.

Meh, I don't really care enough to worry about it conflicting with the standards I have. It's simply a forum, and I was asked to assist in moderating it. I'll do the job because I was given it, and I'll continue to do it until I get it taken away.

Quote:Blazer said that the rules is basically "common sense". If it's "common sense" to you to remove some posts based on the idea that you think they're inappropriate... remove them. I don't think Blazer would argue with your decision.

When it's a minor infraction, there is always the question of "it's bad, but it's so small that is it bad enough to warrant action?" Ultimately, if I find a post/thread is equal to another thread that was allowed to continue, in terms of "damaging" content, then I'll follow that.
