Crimson wrote on Fri, 06 October 2006 11:11I can promise you that my "retribution" and making up for past events does include better and more distinct rules of conduct. I just don't think such a conversation will be very productive until we decide whether certain individuals will be staying or going.

Other "heads" will most likely be chopped, but not all will get the decency of a vote. Like the people from Clanwars.cc who you banned for saying such hideous personal slanders and unforgivable attacks as "wow, so crimson WAS lying... lol" (which was true) and "spoonie didn't do anything..."

Hopefully these new rules of conduct will be clear about the fact you aren't allowed to call someone a liar when they've just publicly lied to the community and banned several people to try to cover it up, and you aren't allowed to side with someone who's just been banned to conceal something.
