So... we should just accept you back with open arms because your sob-story apology surely isn't just a cheap excuse to get yourself un-banned so you can keep right on doing what you do best with no consequences whatsoever. It's just plain common sense that you aren't going to be welcome in the Ren community when you had your chance and used it to give a great big giant "fuck you!" to everyone you ever played a game with.

If you really are sincere about changing your ways (which I doubt), the best thing you can do is not make a big thing about it. Don't post about it, don't talk about it, don't bitch about it- we don't give a flying fuck about how sorry you are. Take your licks and go find a way to play the game without cheating, and remember that no matter how sorry you may (or may not) be, most people aren't too keen on giving second chances to cheaters.
