VegitoQuote:It's not a storyline. It's a description of the map, which is the part you so obviously omitted from your quotage.

Yeah big difference between your story and his story.Only difference I see is that you dont want to call it a story and he doesnt care.

Do you even read what is written, or do you look at a few words and believe that's the entire case-in-point? If so, well done, you're a fucking idiot.

The description of the map is just that - the tropical storm part explains why the map has wind that is so powerful - it makes the rain come in at a 45 degree angle, continually shifting its heading as it comes in. That is not a story. It's a description. The description of the Tiberium meteor on the mountain is just that in itself, so...

I just don't see how you can argue at all when you have nothing to argue about - you're wrong, bluntly stated.
