Like Paradox said, you don't know the whole story.

We never, under any circumstances came to an agreement that I would purchase hardware for her in exchange for her leaking information. She thought it was necessary to pay me back in that way, and I deem that it was acceptable, since there was nothing I could use. I have no C++ knowledge whatsoever so I can't 'steal' a/several scripts and pass them off as my own, I'm just not like that.

Please get your facts straight before you post comments like that saying that she's stabbing the community in the back.
