But of course.

Bush calls in a few business favours with the Bin Laden's (someone who he has been in "legitimate" business with before) and tell him to get into contact with Osama. He then tells them to orchestrate an attack on a few notable targets, and to avoid suspicion, attempt an attack on the White House. He tells them not to worry, as the attack on the White House will be conveniently foiled.

The attacks will allow America to go to war with the Middle East to aquire it's vast oil reserves. He tells the Bin Laden's not to worry, as any hunt against Osama will only be a cover, and Osama will conveniently never be found.

The American people will have their heros. Bush will have his oil and newfound loyal followers in the people, Osama can disappear and the Bin Ladens will have developed a few favours open up to them with the American Government and/or George Bush.

I'd say that's a definite conspiracy theory. And remember, its all true, dispite what some people may tell you to think.
