Everybody knows that the BCS is a flawed system. But, I don't think that any team who doesn't win their conference deserves to play for the national championship. No disrespect to Michigan, but look at who UF played. Their only loss was to Auburn, who finished 10-2. They beat LSU, who's playing in the Sugar Bowl. They beat Arkansas, who also was 10-2. Not to mention they beat FSU (I know they were down this year, but it was in Tallahassee), Tennessee in Knoxville, Alabama, UK, blah blah blah. UM beat a VERY OVERRATED Notre Dame team, Wisconsin, Penn State, and Iowa. I know they lost only by 3 to Ohio State, but their schedule doesn't merit them a trip to the national championship game.
