But, I don't think that any team who doesn't win their conference deserves to play for the national championship. No disrespect to Michigan, but look at who UF played. Their only loss was to Auburn, who finished 10-2. They beat LSU, who's playing in the Sugar Bowl. They beat Arkansas, who also was 10-2. Not to mention they beat FSU (I know they were down this year, but it was in Tallahassee), Tennessee in Knoxville, Alabama, UK, blah blah blah. UM beat a VERY OVERRATED Notre Dame team, Wisconsin, Penn State, and Iowa. I know they lost only by 3 to Ohio State, but their schedule doesn't merit them a trip to the national championship game. It's hard to say that Michigan doesn't deserve it because they didn't win their conference when the team that took it was OSU...

Michigan is the second-best team in the nation, and they should be playing Florida. They don't deserve a rematch as they already lost, but compared to everybody else... they deserve it.

Florida's schedule was harder, and they proved powerful this year, but I don't see them putting up as much of a fight against OSU as Michigan would.

Notre Dame had a hard schedule this year. They are overrated, but not by as much as you seem to think.
