

---

Subject: Re: "Protecting" kids who are unable to tell fantasy from reality

Posted by noitalgz on Sat, 09 Dec 2006 02:49:41 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Ug-I really don't beleive this. The scary part about this whole thing is that its probably going to happen! My old middle school just got rid of some Harry Potter books-but some kids pettioned to get them back-and thankfully they did. They also tried banning the book "The Giver" from our the 8th grade curreculum. It really is stupid now how EVERYTHING we read has to have happy ending or a happy message, otherwise we face the worst kind of terrorist-the ANGRY MOTHER kind. Hell i'll take Bin Laden over the PTA mom.

---