

---

Subject: the draft

Posted by TheatreRaptor on Mon, 02 Jun 2003 08:14:16 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

anort893Quote:MrBob wrote:

North Korea invaded South Korea, which is obviously wrong.

no more than the North invaded the south during our own Civil War. Remember...Korea was it's own country first...same with Vietnam

Duke, learn your history. The Union invaded the Confederacy because it broke away from a sovereign state. Korea wasn't a state before the Korean war, it was territory conquered by Japan. The commies then took over the north and set up a government there, and the U.S. took the south and set up a government there. The North decided that it wanted it all, and invaded with the help of other foreign powers. There is NO comparison to the American Civil War.

Korea broke away but was a country for a short period of time before it broke into two parts, north and south. However, what we were trying to do is to free those that wanted freedom but could not due to outside powers. No matter how you look at it, that should be the ultimate goal of the US. Help those that want help!

---