
Subject: Re: Scam or no Scam?

Posted by Viking on Sun, 10 Dec 2006 08:46:36 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I get maybe? 10 a month?

LOL jest checked my e-mail! (havent done so in a month) HERE IS THE L33T SPAM I GOT!

Quote:

Hello!

Just a quick note. I'm a "work at home" marketer and I need you to take a look at something I'm doing part time..

First of all, if we haven't met before, this is me:

Name: Richard Dean

Email: tagasa@walla.com

(To contact me directly, just hit "reply")

I'm promoting an explosive business opportunity that will literally retire me and give me that financial boost that I need to really have fun!

It's a one of those rare deals that actually pays out 100% to it's members!

I'd appreciate your thoughts.

Click Here To Learn More!

Have a Great Day,

Sincerely,

Richard Dean

tagasa@walla.com

To not receive emails from me again, please reply and let me know. Thanks.

Quote:

Dear Steam user (account name: *****),

This is an automated message generated by Steam account administration to help you reset your Steam password.

Please enter the following code into the 'Verification Code' field of the 'Forgotten Password' dialog. (Enter the code exactly as written. You can use copy/paste operations to enter the code):

Please also enter the answer to the following question into the 'Secret Answer' field of the same dialog:

8

IMPORTANT: Please do not reply to this message to attempt to reset your password -- that won't work. You must enter the above information into the Steam application.

Signed,

The Steam Support Team
To contact us, email steamsupport@support.steampowered.com

=====

This notification has been sent to the e-mail address you provided when you created your Steam account. For information on Valve's privacy policy, please visit <http://www.valvesoftware.com/privacy.htm>

I never asked to reset my password? Do they make you change it now and than?
