It looks like everything is working now, but it's probably the coat hanger holding the bumper on the car so I'm going to be pretty jumpy around the setup until I know it's stable. Thanks to everyone for the advice.

Now on getting XWISP to work... that's a different story. If anyone has had considerable success in getting it to work, I could use some pointers, but I won't go on because this thread will spiral off topic.
