
Subject: Re: Ding Dong...

Posted by ron paul on Sat, 06 Jan 2007 15:15:54 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Darkknight wrote on Sat, 06 January 2007 17:01xptek wrote on Sat, 06 January 2007 00:48Darkknight wrote on Sat, 06 January 2007 01:29Your killing this one old guy was it really worth it?

No.

Stopping genocide was worth it, but killing for the sake of 'revenge' isn't worth it at all. It doesn't take an entire army to kill one man anyway.

sadam killed and tortured thousands of his own people and thats only what we know of. So yeah killing this one old guy was worth it for what he did.

http://www.worldnetdaily.com/news/article.asp?ARTICLE_ID=39045

"we now learn that Saddam's torture chambers reopened under new management, U.S. management" – has had ice-cold water dumped on it by a horrific new video.

"he 4-plus-minute video clip, reportedly obtained from the Pentagon, captures the routine beating, torture, dismemberment and decapitation that occurred daily at the hands of Saddam's henchmen."

"savage scenes of decapitation, fingers chopped off one by one, tongues hacked out with a razor blade – all while victims shriek in pain and the thugs chant Saddam's praises."

Yeah sounds like revenge don't it. Unjustified hanging? Real shame to let this old guy die, should have kept him around for more fun times.

I do believe xptek means it wasn't worth killing him because of all the drama and revenge associated with his martyrdom. And there could have been alternative reasons to keep him alive.

And fl00d3d you need to cool your jets. You don't need use almost every post you make to bring up your military career. On that note you should probably stop bringing up useless facts about the military as well: "all of those people swore and oath and knew ahead of time they could die in the line of duty" etc.
