i hadnt said a word the whole game. i simply raped their infantry with my apache. the game was running smoothly until vert paged me and said "bye" to which i responded with "?" then hem told me i was about to be banned. the point is, that when you entrust 14 year old children with mod, they tend to ban anyone better than them (as seen here and in countless cases before). its a known fact that older people are much more rational in their decision making and often ask for tests/screenshots before banning. example: Duke Gaming Community. ive been tested almost everytime i've played there, asked for screenshots, the works. ive complied with everything and they havent banned me, that's good moderating.
