if whoever was trying to take over wasn't very powerful then i would fight. but there comes a time when you know that fighting would do nothing except get you killed.

Follow up question:

Now then, can you say the same thing for every person in the UK?

no i can't, i think alot of people in our country will fight to the death. There are also alot of people that really don't like our government, i would say half the population would fight and half would just leave. I suppose thats arguable.

You've answered your own question

However, the Iraqis need to hurry up. We've overstayed our welcome as it is. That being said, God bless our troops. Unsung heroes of our time.
