You HAVE to respect a mod if you plan on playing in that server.

Respect is gained and not demanded.

Thats the problem with a lot of small servers that are individually run. Most, not all, who run them, want to be in charge and have no personal skills and very little management skills. So when something goes "tits up" they ban you.

It is similar to when the young boy asks for a game of football and the owner of the ball says NO. When asked why not, he replies "because its my ball and I dont want you playing". He really meant that as the ball/server belongs to him, that he can do what he wants. Well some of the Renegade servers are just the same.

Find a server that you truly enjoy playing in, abide by the rules and enjoy the game.
