Well you see that button called "Print Screen" or "SysRq" above the insert key on your keyboard, believe it or not it takes a screenshot of anything on the screen at the time your press it. Then go into a paint application and click "paste" or press Ctrl+V and watch the sccreen fill with the screen shot you took, save it as a compressed pictrue format such as the Joint Photographic Experts Group format (JPEG for short) and then upload it onto the internet using free webspace or a convinient website such as n00bstories image uploader.

I am not liable for any misuse of the "Print Screen" and/or the "SysRq" button on any keyboard. use it at your own risk, I am not liable for any damage caused by the use of this button and/or conent created.
