Well after fully configuring the newest BR 1.5 and about 5 plugins I have to say I am the happiest I have been in a long time. It works so well, and the level of customization is awesome. I honestly was used to it as I used to have that sort of control with BR.Net but that is a whole other story.

The purpose of this post is with the !modules command. It used to be a list with the current status of each module. Now it is a smaller list and no status.

It would be really nice to know in a flash what was going on with your modules rather than having to guess or having to !set them to be sure they are on.

Thanks!
