Ask yourself the question: is there a reason someone would attack your forums?

I once coded my own, very basic, forum just for leaving messages with replies. But that was just for auto-study and practise .

Usually if you use a free php-forum, you should be ok as long as you keep up to date. Forums like phpbb also have a huge modification community behind it which allow you to modify a lot of things, including security (www.phpbbhacks.com is a great site).
