

---

Subject: Re: Kill judges, bankers, and policemen, walk free in 24 years

Posted by Romaner on Tue, 27 Feb 2007 00:02:53 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

warranto wrote on Mon, 26 February 2007 13:47 How many times he warned he was going to take it away has no bearing. I'd just counter as to whether or not it was appropriate it possess the ipod at the time, and whether it was reasonable to expect that it would be taken away.

Unless you want to argue temporary insanity, of course.

all im saying is that if the student was atleast once told not to bring it in (which im sure he has been) then there is no fault it in once or ever. and dont get me wrong under no circumstance am i defending the student. all im saying is if the teacher just walked up and took it away from him from good without any prior warning then its not right either. as far as i can remember cd players were allowed back when i was in school so why not ipods?

ofcourse listening to one during class when the teacher was teaching wasnt allowed, but during work periods it was

---