Spoony stop hacking peoples accounts, let's look at the facts ffs:

You logged in to his account - how can you expect us to believe that being the head admin of the league somehow allows you to view basic information about a clan.

You obviously edited these screenshots, or else that would support your argument and provide undeniable proof that you are right, that can't be the case cos troop knows all so therefor you edited them.

You failed to know that troop was inactive and wanted his account deleted, you didn't come on this forum or contact him directly as a player in your league and inform him that he would have to spend 10 seconds doing this himself, so you fail at life.

Because of your failures this fake win got reported, the fact that the match happened on legal warrior names and evidence was provided for the game means nothing - why didn't you realise that troop had forgotten about setting up an account, a clan, speaking to you and any rules about said league so you should have not reported the match and perhaps let troop make the rules for the league - he does know everything after all.

As for his account showing active 18 days ago - how does that work, sure a game was registered and it was played but troop didn't report it so ummm for some reason it doesn't count, after all troop says so.

Just feel lucky that we have someone like troop here to show us all what we should be doing as obviously none of us have a clue.
