Blazer wrote on Mon, 12 March 2007 10:36 Thanks for the honesty, although a bit late. Out of curiosity, can you try to describe how cheating made you feel, while you were doing it? I am interested in the psychology of cheaters. I have found that most cheaters cheat not to win, but rather because they "get off" on making people angry. Someone who truly cheats to win, would use a subtle cheat, and prefer not to be detected. Most it seems, use obvious cheats and just sit and LOL everytime they one-shot kill something and someone goes "OMG xxxx hax!". They keep doing it until they get banned, and then they go to another server and do the same thing, like its a drug that they can't get enough of.

So which type are/were you? Please sit and think back to what it felt like when you cheated, before you answer.

Neither, I was more or less the type that sat there, and was like...

This is it?

I got bored of it really easy.

So on the last day, I said fuck it, Then it happend to be that my clan found out, and banned me. Not saying i didnt deserve it.

After three games or so, in my case, I was wondering to myself-
There has to be more fun then this.

It was just an easy answer to kill people.

And your right, I know i was obvious about it, cause i really didnt care all that much.

And To Goztow, Wheter I myself, as a person, is banned, A new account, new Ip, will be all it needs.

And im also knowing that the forums can trace them, and therefore post in a forum topic-

OMG HAXOR! BAN HIS IP! NOWWWWWWWW.

Then post it everywhere.

If I see that happen, I'll have to leave the forums.

Ill browse them, obviously, but have my own input, probably not.

And Mex-

I personally could care less about your post, I thought you would have been mature about it, instead, you post that I was caught, proven, then fessed up.

Which, I already said, so there was no need to say that.

Your attempt to make me feel bad, failed.

I liked you as a person, until some of the things you said to me on msn.

It was quite said to see an attemp at a reasonable conversation had to turn into immature emoticons and gestures.

So, ill say the same thing you said to me-
Fuck you.
