

---

Subject: Re: A school's pethetic "policy".

Posted by cheesesoda on Wed, 14 Mar 2007 00:47:59 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

mrpirate wrote on Tue, 13 March 2007 20:34Seems like it would lead to the minority of successful schools expanding in greatly in size while the rest are run out of business. If a school starts to lose students (and money) it would be required to perform better with less money? Doesn't sound like a recipe for success to me.

It's called Capitalism, and it works.

You're forced to take into consideration what's important. You are forced to stop with the careless spending, and your effort has to go up. There's always room for improvement, and that's what Capitalism supports.

---