I need you the most. I can't even do a stall or put things to scale. My vent shafts are too small and I had to enable no falling damage for MI6/M16/GDI units. As for the level itself, the Citadel* looks better.

*The Citadel was an early test level. I was just colored shapes and planes. Surprisingly, it seems to be the largest and best multiplayer level I've played despite it's looks.

Anyway, I desperately need a modeler who better than an insane monkey (I.E. Anyone one planet Earth who isn't either me, in a coma/dead, or a child molester). And you seem to be better than the guys who modded Goldeneye, so I was really hoping for your help. I'll name a weapon after you.

Besides, R1942 looks like it has someone competent (sp?) to model. I'm a (read as: I'm learning to be a) programmer. Generally, there are 3 kinds of people, idea guys, art guys, and science guys (Bill Nye the Science Guy). There are lots of people who are mixtures, but those are the general categories. I'm 1/3 ideas, 2/3 (computer) science, 0/3 art.

In closing, I suck at models and being direct/indirect (It depends on weather I need to be direct or indirect).
