Dave Anderson wrote on Thu, 22 March 2007 09:03 That's a really nice flash drive. I may just order a few of them when I get home.

The read/write speeds are not as fast as OCZ's Rally line (which has won quite a lot of praise for it's high speed) but the Mini-Kart is still an awesome flash drive for any enthusiast or professional. If it is too small for you, attach the small 2" lanyard and place the flash drive in the plastic carrying case like I do. The mini comes in three sizes, 512MB, 1GB and 2GB. Having the 2GB drive has opened up the floodgates for me. I can carry around music, work, and personal files all the same time with room to breath.

If you are really looking for a hardcore solution, check out OCZ's Mega-Kart flash drives, which hold 8GB or 16GB are the size of a credit card, and twice as thick as a credit card.
