Imagine dominating the middle east, and being able to controll the oil, and therefore not just your own economy but the global economy. That coupled with the fact you have marshall law and democracy goes out the window.

What is that situation called again? Oh yeah, I know... It's called world dictatorship.

I wonder if China would start beefing up, they can't be too happy seeing another super power becoming even more "superer"

Anyway.. I voted before the presedential election.

Hey, I'd be less worried about George Bush becoming "dictator" than I would watching all of my liberties be taken out from underneath me in England.

Also, the US says we're not showing force, but rather just doing some exercises. Yeah... that's believable. Why can't we just admit that we're flaunting our military might? We should be doing that, anyways.
