Damn, now everyone's being really nice.

egg098, despite agreeing on the whole with what you said, I hardly think it's appropriate for a new user to barge in, create a topic which contains an obscenity and is almost all in capital letters, and then ask a question that could be answered, just as j_ball said, by going somewhere as simple as http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/IRC.
Perhaps if they had come in and started a topic that was nice, informal but still with proper grammar, and asked nicely, then people would have been nicer.

Quote:How did you act when you first contacted someone?
You can look up my first message on this forum if you want.
Or, type jonty-comp into Google to find where the first place I ever contacted the outside world through the miracles of the internets. I was 12 when I did that.