

---

Subject: Re: Judge abusing the legal system to fuck over a small business

Posted by Blazer on Wed, 13 Jun 2007 08:36:40 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Not bumping an old topic...this fuckhole actually got his day(s) in court!

<http://www.foxnews.com/story/0,2933,281473,00.html>

Some LOL moments from the trial:

dumbest lawsuit ever

Pearson, who represented himself, proceeded to call some eight witnesses that included his 38-year-old son and some members of the community who had had bad experiences with Custom Dry Cleaners, including an 89-year-old woman in a wheelchair who drifted at times into her service in the Kennedy-Johnson administration.

This witness, Dr. Grace Hewell, was certainly entertaining when she noted that she was "chased" out of the store by Mr. Chung, which she then slid into comparing to "surviving the Nazis" while she was stationed in Germany in World War II.

When Pearson testified as himself — a narrative that lasted for more than an hour — he broke down and cried and asked for a recess. The breakdown occurred right after he described being told that the Chungs "did not have his pants" that he so desperately needed to start his new job as a judge in 2005.

Some other color to note — a man in a seersucker suit from the American Tort Reform Association handed out green buttons with a picture of pants on them that read: "$65 Million Pantsuit Perverts D.C.'s Consumer Protection Law."

Seriously...this guy is wasting taxpayer money to have a week long trial, that would never ever be allowed except for the fact that he is a judge. He had just become a judge too, so I guess the good ole boy club let's people in early now.

---