The amount of money the government pisses up the wall on complete nonsense would make this pale in comparison - I think it is about time we did something and wiping out the debt is a good start - there is something a little wrong with sitting on your ass in a comfy house eating McDonalds, surfing the internet whilst millions of people live in squalor dying of starvation, but most of the time people don't think about it or care giving money this way would basically be unnoticable and imo, morally right.

I just wish these people would help themselves by using even a basic level of common sense, ie: if you live next to a river that you drink from - don't empty your toilets in to it. If you have (or might have) aids, how about not fucking 24/7 and popping out 235456967 children who will then die horribly - when you can't even support yourself you shouldn't just keep producing kids and make the problem worse.

These people need a basic education and need to understand that they need to work hard to change things for themselves, if they can do that then I think we should help them as much as we can.
